The Greatest Ever: Motorcycles, Discovery, 10pm: A fast-paced, head-spinning, informative and irreverent approach to the marvels of modern technology. Watch the top 10 count-down to the best motorcycles ever.

The Last Chance, Hallmark, 6.15pm: With the passing of cowboy and rancher Charlie Bankston, the future of his Dry Creek Ranch is uncertain. Charlie left the ranch to his granddaughter, Jake (Jennie Garth), who fled the homestead long ago, as she hated all that it represented. Jake's father, Will (Lance Henrikson), a man whom she blames for her mother's untimely death kept the ranch afloat. Now Jake has returned to claim what is rightfully hers.

Jules Sylvester's Wild Adventures: South Africa, Travel Channel, 11pm: Animal trainer and reptile expert Jules Sylvester introduces us to some of the world's most amazing creatures. Jules and his guide Tanya track a herd of wild African elephants through the dense SA bush, also coming across lions, tigers, rhinoceri, leopards, hippos, cheetahs, impalas and the deadliest snake in Africa, the Black Mamba.

Kids revel in magic of 3D animation

BY CHARLES DE OLIM

For a man who breaks out in a cold sweat at the mere thought of baby-sitting his two toddler nephews, you could call it something of a metamorphosis.

In the space of a week, I have written two articles on "children's" programmes. Admittedly, the first was one of those "the PR foxed me and that's my lot for this year" type stories.

But this, I am happy to say, is far more worthy. I can also assure readers that I am neither entering a broody phase (are males entitled to claim that they succumb to such bizarre pangs?) nor have any intentions of strengthening SA's gene pool in the foreseeable future.

Which means that Magic Cellar, Africa's first 3D animated series, is indeed deserving of praise.

The fact is as men, we like to think we can deal with anything. But nothing freaks us out more, and exposes our vulnerabilities, than dealing with out-of-control children. Therefore, we marvel at anything (mothers, wives, girlfriends, toys) which can subdue these blighters with their boundless Duracell bunny-like energy from causing general mayhem wherever they go.

Magic Cellar managed to keep my nephews out of mischief this past Saturday (SABC 2, 2.15pm), so mesmerised were they by the storyline. As they sat transfixed in front of the TV it even afforded me the opportunity to slip out to the pub for a quick beer with my mates and catch the second half of the Super 14 game. (Note: For those alarmed by my gross negligence – no children were harmed in the making of this story).

A combined SA and Canadian production, Magic Cellar is the brainchild of Mfundi Vundla of Generations fame and Canadian director Firdaus Kharras and the show features music composed by Musa Manzini.

Regardless of the fact that it is the first locally produced 3D animated show, the quality of the graphics will be the critical factor. And quality animation there is aplenty. Even I found myself caught up in the story.

The racial characterisation may be somewhat contrived (the multicultural cast features a coloured boy, a black girl, an Asian girl, a white boy and an Indian girl), but what makes this a standout animation project is the fact that African scenery as well as African folklore are used to give it a truly local feel. As is the territory of children's stories, there is also the stipulated lesson to be learnt from each episode.

Saturday afternoons will never have to be a nerve-wrecking affair ever again – oh, yeah, and sis, I was only kidding about the going to the pub thing.

Scandal!

Tamia is devastated when Malik announces that he plans to leave her forever.
